Friday, August 25, 1873.

The Victoria Standard.

British Columbia is peculiarly unfortunate in having no Government borders a class of persons ever on the alert to traduce her character, misrepresent her institutions, and speak evil of those who have the administration of her affairs. Our neighbors on the other side of the line present a wide contrast in this respect, when compared with some of our own people. However high political feeling may run there, they never carry it so far as to sacrifice the best interests of the colony in order to make political capital. If the American people err at all in such matters, it is in overestimating, not in belittling, the institutions and resources of their country. We pointed out the other day how inconsistently had been the conduct of our morning contemporaries in finding fault with the action of the Government in causing surveys of agricultural lands to be made with a view to offering portions thereof for sale by public competition and setting apart other portions into townships for use of settlers under the free grant provisions of the Land Amendment Act, 1873. We demonstrated by quotations from its own columns that it had repeatedly urged upon the Government the adoption of the very policy it now so warmly condemns, that endorsed the new Land Act in its entirety, and admitted that the proposition to sell the public lands by auction to the highest bidder was a step "in the right direction." It nevertheless had the bold presumption to give it a flat denial to the authenticity of its own previous utterances, and tried to crawl out of the dilemma after the following fashion: "We are aware that it made no extract wherein we referred to 'restrictions' imposed by the Treaty of 1869, and it will be that by this we complained of inability to 'sell' the public lands, but the deduction is to be quite unavoidable that we were called upon to notice it. Now, however, that this is repeated as an answer to our challenge, we will condescend to set our contemporary right, by informing that, in the passage quoted, we had in our minds power to make 'free grants,' certainly not the power to sell; and if proof of this be necessary, it will be found in the fact that the whole scope and tenor of all our writing on this subject has been in favor of free grants to actual settlers." We would have done well to let our contemporaries above-mentioned, that there is not the slightest reason, directly or indirectly, to free grants, which says "I had in my mind," but, on the contrary, the burden of his complaint was that by the terms of the treaty of union the Government of British Columbia could not make "free grants" any further portions of the public lands in any other way than under right of pre-emption, requiring actual residence of the pre-emptor." Having exposed the unwarrantable character of the argument, the Government is compelled to admit to the projected sale of public lands by auction, our contemporary has changed its base, and now attacks the Government for having published to the world the fact that under the new Land Act provision is made whereby free grants to actual settlers offered under such regulations shall from time to time be made by Order in Council. The making of this fact public, however, is not the only cause of our "extreme injustice," and we presume the said Government not made it known, it would just as readily have branded the omission "extreme neglect" of a very obvious duty. It admits that it is "quite aware that the Act empowers the Governor in Council to make free grants, not exceeding 250 acres to every male [and female as well] settler complying with certain prescribed conditions;" but we were not aware that any action taken by the Governor in Council under the provisions of the Act was of a nature requiring a degree of formality as to justify the issuing of such a notice at San Francisco a fortnight ago, or now, or a fortnight hence." It would appear, then, that the great fault of the Government in connection with this matter, has been that they did not deem it necessary to make out our contemporary acquainted in some special manner, with what had been done in Executive Council with reference to this subject, and have much pleasure, however, in informing our contemporaries that all bona fide settlers who come to us may come and obtain from 100 to 250 acres of land, according to location east or west of the Cascade range, without money and without price, by simply complying with the terms laid down in the act. Will the Colonists be so kind as to notice this important fact in its coldness as an item of special interest? What appears particularly unfair on the part of our contemporary in holding the Government responsible for our contemporaries' ignorance in reference to this question of making free grants to settlers, who would have called for no comment from us, had it not gone the length of declaring the announcement made by the Government Agent in San Francisco that "the Government of British Columbia offers 250 acres of land to each actual settler, as a perfectly free grant, upon the performance of the necessary settlement duties," "was absolutely untrue." Here, then, we have another contemporary, in contrast with Mr. G. D. Brown, bringing into the influence it possesses to draw people from coming to the Province to settle, although the public lands are offered to them as an absolute gift, and gives expression to the opinion that it is not only "extremely injurious" but "positively wicked" to induce immigrants to come here upon what it is pleased to call "false representations." Is it any wonder that immigrants fight shy of British Columbia when they read in a public paper, published in one of the governments, that agents put forth various means of attraction to induce immigrants to settle in the country are "absolutely untrue," "positively wicked," and that "nothing could be more productive of mischief." Surely it is time that some effort were not forth to mark the public disapprobation of conduct so fraught with mischief to the country, so traitorous to its interests, and so utterly indefensible. In all sincerity we would ask, is this not carrying the spirit of notice beyond the limits of reasonable chiding?

A dream came o'er me as I lay
With head on pillow pressed close.
Of such splendid dreams I was
And fast, and much a Yea!
I thought that as I walked abroad
All was on me were cast,
All sh'd I my dream it passed away
Twas far too bright to last.
But still before my eager gaze
Would come the dream of other days.

One day as I walked out alone,
My mind with sadness fraught
I wondered if in this good town
Such Clothing could be bought;
Just then a friend was passing by
Who saw the sadness in my eye,
So kindly asked me, him to tell
What grief o'er me had cast a spell.
He told me of the vision seen,
Said he, go buy of David Green.

MARSHAL.
At Beaconsfield, V.T., on the 21st inst., at the residence of the wife's father, Charles, eldest son of Rear-Admiral James Prevost, it was learned that Anne, eldest daughter of Admiral Prevost, had died.

Madame Bishop's Complimentary Banquet.

Madame Anna Bishop, after singing in this city for the past ten days to first class houses, last night received a complimentary banquet tendered her by the citizens of Victoria. The dinner service was well filled and also were the parquetry and boxes, and it must have proved very gratifying to the great Prima Donna that such a distinct mark of appreciation should be shown her, as a more flattering compliment it would have been difficult to pay, and impossible to receive. In this ultimo shade of creation, distant as we are from opportunities to frequently listen to musical entertainments of more than ordinary character, it would have been astonishing if Victoria had not turned out en masse to welcome Madame Bishop. Her appearance, however, did not seem to set that the more than liberal patronage with which these excellent vocalists have been surprised the Prima Donna herself, and led her to admire Victoria more sincerely than ever. We regret that pressure of matter prevents us alluding to each item on last night's programme separately and so carefully as its merits call for, but to sum up the entertainment in a few words, we can safely say that it was a series of good vocal and instrumental selections, well rendered and appreciated most enthusiastically. We cannot however do justice to the respective merits of each artiste, so we will content ourselves with a short account of Madame Bishop's excellent voice. Her voice is "wide and full," and she has a clear, ringing tone, and the most beautiful diaphragm. She has a fine soprano, and the most charming bouquet musical which comprised no less than ten national melodies. It would also be unjust to pass over Mr. Gilder's magnificent execution and unfeeling accuracy in piano forte solos. Mr. Wilkie's clear and ringing tenor in the songs "Love's Request," "You I remember me," and "The anchor's weight," and Mr. Gottschalk's round, powerful bass, "Vivaviso," (Bellini), and one of his own compositions.

Every piece drew forth immense applause, and the Prima Donna as she left the stage was, on more than one occasion, perfectly overwhelmed with sweet bouquets. After she had sung "God save the Queen," and brought the concert to a close, the audience obstinately refused to leave their seats, and eventually brought back the four artists in a final rendering of the "Laughing Chorus."

Just as we were going to press we received a card from Madame Bishop, to which we would refer our readers who shall see an opinion the good judgment, capability and artistic exhibition exhibited by Victoria's artists have won for them in the heart of the celebrated Prima Donna!

Card from Madame Anna Bishop.

Bonnie.

To the Citizens of Victoria—I cannot leave your hospitable shores to-night without expressing my heartfelt thanks for the honour and great kindness I have received from one and all during my short stay among you; and this last gracious act of giving me a complimentary banquet will ever be remembered as the bright star of my remaining life.

To my lady friends I must say to say how happy they have made me, and how much I appreciate their kind and considerate ways for all your kindness, and I am sure I must add the acknowledgment of my husband and companion artists who have shared with me your liberal praise. Adieu.

Bonnie gratefully yours,

ANNA BISHOP SHULTZ.

VICTORIA, August 21st, 1873.

Joaquin Miller's "Life Among the Indians."—Joaquin Miller's "Life Among the Indians" was to have been ready to-day, but it is delayed, and will not be out till next week. He styled it "unwritten history," and it is, I presume, not secret that Mr. Miller's views of Indian life and of the Indians himself are very unlike those which prevail among the generality of white men at the West. The book is a defense of the Indians, and as a defense of the Indians implied pretty strong censure on those who attack them, there is a prospect of a lively reception ahead. But they would pay if the author were not Joaquin Miller. British interest in the Indians cannot be very great, but in Mr. Miller it is considerable. There is still, however, a Society for the Protection of the Aborigines, just as there is a Society for the Conversion of the Jews, and I believe the former has made rather more headway than the latter. In America, where Mr. Miller has, of course, a copyright, his book will be published a little later in England.—London Correspondent of New York Times.

CITY REAL ESTATE TAX.—The Corporation by law for raising a revenue upon real estate including improvements thereon, within the original city limits, levies a tax of one per cent. on the assessed value, for the month ending December 31st of every year. The tax upon property outside of the original limits and within the extended limits for a period of six months ending 31st of December, '73, is one-half of one per cent. The taxes are due and payable on the 1st of September next. Interest is to be added to taxes if not paid within certain specified periods, and if taxes remain unpaid for the space of three years, the property is subject to be sold at public auction. The proceeds after paying all expenses are to be held by the Mayor and Council of the city for the owner of the land sold.

POLICE COURT, YESTERDAY.—A suit for five days wages, $2 50, was brought by an Indian against the master of the Discovery schooner. Case postponed until Monday. Two cases of assault were heard before the Master, who allowed them to be settled out of Court. Robert McMillan was brought up on two charges, one for supplying liquor to an Indian woman, the second offence was for assaulting the same. The woman stated that she took the liquor herself, it was brought to her house, but not given her by defendant. She admitted, however, the charge of assault upon her. The Magistrate imposed a fine of $15 for the assault, and dismissed the second charge, at the same time administering a wholesome caution.

From NASSAU.—The Douglass from Nassau arrived at 5 p.m. yesterday, with the following passengers on board:—Mr. and Mrs. C. L. and Dr. Justice Begbie, Mr. Bullock, C.M.; Mr. Dugdale, Mr. Revell, Captain Cooper, Mr. M. & Fisher, Captain Egerton, R.N.; J. Morley, Esq., J. P. Mrs. Prevost and family, Mrs. Spencer and children, Miss Pollard, and Messrs. Hughes, Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Hurst, Mrs. Jones, McGregor, H. Fry, Brown, Jones, Robinson, Jackson and a few others. Speech of the Governor General.
HON. R. V. THOMAS, JUDGE OF THE PEACE.

GREAT EXCITEMENT OVER THE RAILWAY BRIDGE AND THE CANADA PACIFIC SCANDAL.

MONDAY NIGHT.

An Ottawa dispatch of the 13th inst., says:

Parliament was prorogued to-day with a speech by the Governor General, in the course of which he said:

I have thought it expedient, in the interest of good government, to pray that a commission should be issued to inquire into the matters connected with the Canadian Pacific rail road, and that the public attention be given thereto, and that the confidence advanced before such commission should be restored to the Commissioners who will be instructed to proceed with the inquiry with all diligence, and to transmit their report as well to the Speaker of the Senate and the House of Commons, as to myself. Immediately on receipt of the report I shall cause Parliament to be summoned for the dispatch of business, and to give an early opportunity of taking such report into consideration.

An extraordinary scene took place on the meeting of Parliament to-day. The Speaker of the House of Commons, Mr. T. F. Drake, was called to the wicket vacated by the last victim, Currie, facing him at the other end. The first ball Drake received from Ogle hit for two legs, and Curtis increased the score by a couple of thoms, but then succumbed to a straight one from the same bowler. Pouley joined Drake, opening his account with a good over to the on, off Ogle, but also with a single, and then Ogle added his wicket by a single. The score was 10 runs for six wickets. Currie went to the wicket, and after adding a single, played over a ball well bowled by Ogle, and left, the record at 7 wickets down to 23 runs. Richardson and Drake meanwhile kept the scores a little more busily employed until Warleigh went on at the upper wicket, a change which resulted in Mr. Drake being bowled by the first ball delivered in the new over. The last batsman made 10, the only double figure of the innings, and the two remaining wickets. Messrs. Wilson's and Gibson's both yielded a few runs, and Richardson was out on the third piece of bat and judgment, and Wilson failed to keep his wicket up, against Ogle's efforts. The innings thus resulted with 39 runs and the navy team regarded an easy victory inevitable. Without delay Messrs. Woody and Romilly were the first to represent the fleet. First coming from the upper wicket and Pouley at the lower, Richardson's wicket fell in the first over to Richardson, and the crack of the bat, Wood, filled the vacancy; in conjunction with Moody, he ran the score up to 14, of which the last named gentleman made 10, and then the two batsmen, now Wood and Romilly, added 10, Ogle succeeded in adding a single to the score, and then, being caught out, made way for F. J. Thomas, who had the music to be caught off his hand by Howard, after making three singles. Mr. Wade cut one of Richardson's for two and retired the following ball, Mr. T. F. Thomas being the only batsman who followed who materially increased the score, his contribution of 7 being added by 2 from Tomkinson, 4 from Bowes, and 3 from Warleigh, the innings closing at or near of 44, or 5 in advance of the Victorians. This reduced the margin to 10 runs, and the navy team, though not out, were still in front.
